NO PANIC IN THE THEATRE.

The Scare at the Columbia Greatly Exaggerated.

Manager Knowles, of the Columbia Theatre, Brooklyn, said to-day that the stories published in several morning parers, of a scare during the performince last night of "A Social Swim" by Marie Wainwright and company, were greatly exaggerated.

A woman scented fire and started to leave the theatre. Several other persons became somewhat alarmed, and followed her. But when Miss Wainwright assured the audience that there was no danger, they returned, and the excitement subsided.
